

From Texting to Testing: It's all about ACCESSIBILITY

Using the latest technology, SAAF is increasing awareness about and access to resources for HIV/AIDS. SAAF's webpage is being updated to serve as a portal to our many programs and services as well as a link to social media. The advantages are numerous. YouTube makes it easy to share video messages, and networking sites such as Facebook and MySpace can target messages to specific groups. SAAF now has six public pages on Facebook, four of which are devoted to SAAF's youth prevention programs. Cyber safe spaces, like the MSHAPE's Men's Group, give participants a moderated forum to network privately.

The Internet increases access to information and the smartphone makes access mobile and portable. Whether texting or tweeting, you can have conversations with another person or with an entire social network. Creative use of many smartphone features helps broaden our reach. For instance, MTV Staying Alive and iCondom have a free app identifying condom dispensers. Just upload the app, touch the screen and your GPS system provides you with the name and address of nearby participating locations (See the article by Jerry Diaz on the front cover).

Using the app, you'll find free condoms, personal lubrication and safer-sex kits available at SAAF's office, Wingspan, local gay bars, and the Theresa Lee Clinic. SAAF has acquired condom vending machines in 23 locations around town where you can purchase one condom and a packet of personal lubrication for 25 cents. The proceeds benefit SAAF's Food Programs.

Smartphone's apps make it quick and easy to register for AIDS WALK 2011 on Sunday, October 16. To register or make a gift, just capture an image of the event's mobile bar code. Simply put your phone by the bar code on an AIDS WALK display, poster, flyer, registration form, or even this newsletter, and you will be taken directly to the AIDS WALK web page.

For the first time ever, SAAF is also offering HIV testing services at AIDS WALK, using rapid testing technology. Everyone has an HIV status. By knowing yours, you become empowered, doing your part to prevent the spread of HIV.

Although the fast-paced world of technology is wonderful and makes access to information convenient, it can't take the place of the human touch. Alonso, Matthew and Michael, all SAAF Prevention Staff members, drive as far west as Yuma and as far north as Payson providing rapid HIV testing and harm-reduction services. Thanks to their long hours on the road, people in eight previously underserved rural counties have access to HIV testing. SAAF promotes and facilitates early access to care and treatment for those diagnosed with HIV. Compassionate Peer Counselors and Case Managers support and assist people to navigate through complex social service and health care systems.

I am proud of SAAF's client-centered approach. People coming to SAAF are in different places in their lives. We provide them all with access to resources to take charge of their health and their lives. This includes access to computers and the Internet in the MSHAPE lounge and the Group Room off the lobby, and the Alternatives Drop-In center at SAAF headquarters.

It's all about accessibility.

We Were Here Screening at the Loft - One Night Only

By Ethan Smith Cox, Development Director

"Of all the cinematic explorations of the AIDS crisis,
not one is more heartbreaking and inspiring than
WE WERE HERE, a quiet, elegiac documentary about the response to the epidemic in San Francisco."

— Stephen Holden, New York Times

On Wednesday, October 12, at 7:30 pm, SAAF and the Loft
Cinemas team up to present We Were Here, a 2011 film documenting the early days of the AIDS crisis in San Francisco.

We Were Here revisits San Francisco a decade after the outbreak of AIDS, when the city's flourishing gay community is hit by this unimaginable disaster. This is the first documentary to take a deep, reflective look back at the arrival and impact of AIDS in San Francisco. It explores how the city's inhabitants were affected by, and how they responded to that calamitous epidemic.

Though a San Francisco-based story, We Were Here extends beyond the city and epidemic, and speaks to the capacity of individuals to come together as a community and face adversity with love, compassion and determination.

The Loft screening kicks off our AIDS WALK 2011 weekend of events.

Technology Meets Necessity Meets SAAF

By Jerry Diaz, Senior Health Education Specialist

Help prevent the spread of HIV and other sexually-transmitted infections.
We at SAAF urge you to support
MTV Staying Alive and iCondom
in their mission to create the world's largest map of condom distribution.

Download the free iCondom app
(www.mycondom.com) to locate sites
in our community
that distribute very
low-cost condoms.

You have either heard or experienced this scenario yourself. You are out and having a great time with someone. You envision an intimate situation with this amazing person but one issue looms large. You don't have a condom.

Studies show that the possibility of HIV infection
rises when condoms are not available. Although SAAF has always been a leader in supplying safe-sex items, its reach is limited. It is one organization in one building that is only open during regular office hours. Through partnership, SAAF and other community organizations have succeeded in making condoms available at various locations to anyone needing them. This effort has been a rewarding community-building effort that has paid off for many years.

Music Television (MTV) and Apple have created an application that puts the convenience of knowing where to find a condom in the palm of your hand. Smartphone users, meet the iCondom App. The app is free and can be downloaded and used on your smartphone, hand-held device, or tablet. The application uses a location function to spot where in your area condoms are available. The map screen looks like any other GPS, with pins that show where condoms are available. Select a pin and a screen describing the location appears.
The location may be an office, business, bar, or health organization.

iCondom works hand in hand with SAAF, identifying places where SAAF stocks condoms (SAAF stocks condoms in local GLBT bars, Wingspan, community centers, and restaurants where the cost is only 25 cents).

There is now no excuse to be without a condom.
Stop the spread of HIV.
Download your free app at mycondom.com today.

Staff Spotlight

By Imelda Rodriguez, Development Associate

I am the Development Associate for the Southern Arizona AIDS Foundation (SAAF) and began working here in January 2011. My main job at SAAF includes administrative duties for the Development Department where I oversee gift entry and acknowledgement, and manage Sage, our fundraising software. I am also responsible for generating reports and helping with SAAF's events whenever possible.

I absolutely adore working at SAAF. It is truly a place I am happy to come to everyday. I can be myself and am completely in love with everyone I work with. SAAF staffer's compassion permeates every aspect of our work with clients and the communities we serve. At the end of the day, it feels so good to go home and know that the work I've done contributes to the greater good.

When I am not working, I enjoy being with my two boys, Gabriel, age 16, and Josiah, 1. Gabriel is a sophomore at Cholla High School and currently plays football there (Go Chargers!). Although he is barely one, Josiah is the most talkative little man you will ever meet, even though much of what he says is barely intelligible.

One thing that many people may not know about me is that I was adopted from Mexico as a child and I could not have asked for two greater parents, even if I had chosen them myself.

I am so happy to be at SAAF and feel lucky to work with such a dedicated group of staff, donors, and volunteers. It lifts my heart every day.

SAAF Stars Shine in Tucson

By Monique Vallery, Events Coordinator

Ms Lucinda Holliday (long time SAAF supporter and 2011 SAAF volunteer appreciation award winner) and the SAAF staff have joined forces to raise money for care services programs.

In August, Senior Health Specialist Waco Starr took the stage at Woody's as Ms. Synchronicity Starr. That evening's scintillating performance helped to raise nearly $1,000 for the Share Bear Fund, a program that helps provide direct services to clients.

The next performance will take place starting at 9:30pm on Friday October 7 at Woody's and will feature SAAF's Events Coordinator Monique Vallery as l'nedagina.

Look for future performance dates in our e-newsletter, the SAAF Connection Plus. To subscribe to SAAF's e-news and never miss a single exciting update, go to saaf.org and enter your email address in the box provided on the home page.
